Illinois Leader Comes Out Against Klan In Statement

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 19—With William Gibbs McAdoo in active charge of his campaign for the democratic presidential nomination and new headquarters opened for Governor Alfred E. Smith, where he will meet and get acquainted with the increasing flow of delegates, the heightened tenseness of political maneuvering was distinctly noticeable today.

Anti-McAdoo leaders began conferences seeking to select possible opponents.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi already selected for temporary chairman of the convention is the latest to be mentioned as a possible compromise candidate for the nomination.

Others, some of whom have already opened headquarters include Oscar Underwood, John W. Davis, Carter Glass, Samuel L. Ralston, James M. Cox and Joseph T. Robinson.

Homer S. Cummings, generally understood to be slated for chairman of the resolutions committee, already is beginning to feel the pressure regarding the various planks for the platform.

George E. Brennan, Illinois leader, who arrived yesterday, came out strongly against the Ku Klux Klan. On the subject of whether the convention would be long in session, or whether the nomination would quickly be made, Mr. Brennan said:

"My guess and my prediction is that the convention will take more than five and not more than ten ballots. There will be no quick nomination."

On the two thirds rule, he said: "Once the two thirds rule goes, the unit rule, binding delegations in several states will have to go. I don't believe folks who are talking of substituting nomination by majority rule will care to face such a prospect."

McADOO AND FAMILY ENJOY SIMPLE LIFE.

William Gibbs McAdoo, Democratic Presidential aspirant, is tempting his daughter, Mary Faith McAdoo, with a bit of bacon he has fried at their mountain camp near Los Angeles. Prior to coming East to attend the Democratic National Convention, McAdoo took a brief vacation with his wife and two young daughters, roughing it in the Rocky Mountains.

BATTLE OCCURS IN COAL MINE CAMP

(Associated Press)

MORGANTOWN, West Va., June 19—One man was wounded, the union hall was destroyed by fire and a number of houses occupied by miners were fired upon during a battle early today, between mine guards and a group of union miners at Brady, near here, Sheriff W. M. Yost reported on his return from the scene.

The battle which began at midnight, terminated shortly after dawn. Four men arrested by the sheriff and his deputies and brought to the county jail here said they were union miners, formerly employed by the Brady-Warner coal corporation, owners of the mines which resumed operation recently with non-union labor, after the union men refused to return to work under the 1915 scale.

Special mine guards, employed to patrol the Brady property, defended the mine against the attack of the men who secreted themselves in a hill overlooking the operations. Automatic rifles were used, Sheriff Yost reported.

When the battle started, women and children of the working miners took refuge in the basements of their homes which were in the line of fire. These houses, the sheriff said, were shot full of holes.

The Brady mine has been the scene of a number of outbreaks since the operations were placed on an open shop basis.

The prisoners said the shooting began when an organization, known as the regulators burned a large cross on a hillside. As soon as the cross was lighted a number of shots were fired.

This was followed, according to the miners, by a volley from a house in which seven mine guards were quartered. In a moment, the prisoners continued the entire village was engaged in the battle.

ARM DISLOCATED

The right arm of Contractor Eugene Milam was thrown out of place at the elbow this morning while he was riding an elevator in the Priest building on Grant street. Mr. Milam is the brick work contractor in charge of the erection of the building, and as he threw out his arm to correct an apparent defect in the way the elevator was running, the member struck the hard frame work and was dislocated in a moment. The arm has been set and except for pain and inconvenience Mr. Milam is resting well.

PRaises DIRECTOR LABORATORY HERE

The Tennessee Valley laboratory will be enlarged as occasion demands, stated Dr. L. C. Havens, of Montgomery an official of the state health department. Dr. Havens is here to inspect the local laboratory and the county health unit.

He stated he found the reorganization and rearrangement for the Tennessee Valley laboratory as effected by Dr. Perollo, its director, had greatly increased its efficiency.

"The Valley has a 100 per cent laboratory managed in the best possible manner and it should be literally patronized," said Dr. Perollo.

"The money for its operation is paid by the people themselves and they are entitled to its free use. The physicians of the Valley are finding the laboratory a great help to them and their patients from the way they are using it. The larger the uses the laboratory is put to, the larger the state will equip it. If occasion demands it, the laboratory will be enlarged," concluded Dr. Havens.

COURT NEARLY READY

The business men's handball court, said to be one of the fastest in the state, will be ready for use by Friday evening, stated C. J. Randolph, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A.

The court will be brilliantly lighted.

DOKEY CEREMONIAL TO BE HELD IN JULY IN MORGAN COUNTY

Event Will Be Staged In Hartselle Or Decatur

SPECIAL TRAIN TO CARRY MEMBERS

Visitors To Come Here This Month To Plan Ceremonial

Joe King Stanley, sheik of Aladdin Temple, Gadsden, and Votary Jimmie James, of Gadsden, will be here June 24 or June 25 to obtain applications for a big Dokey ceremonial, to be held about July 10, either here or in Hartselle.

The ceremonial will be conducted by Aladdin Temple No. 153 of Birmingham and the temple will operate a special train and bring all of the uniform bodies, consisting of band, drum corps, drill team and a full divan and the marching club, in addition to many votaries.

It was pointed out that applications received at the forthcoming visit of the two officials will be the last opportunity candidates will have to obtain the benefit of the present initiation fee, the fee advancing after July 1.

One of the features of the ceremonial in North Alabama will be the presence of many imperial officers, as a special commission of the imperial palace will be in session with the imperial prince, in Birmingham on July 8 to 10, and will adjourn the morning of the tenth to attend the ceremonial.

The commission consists of two past imperial princes, the Imperial Prince, D. W. C. Yarbrough of Birmingham, (highest national officer), the Imperial Basha (next Imperial Prince) and the Imperial Secretary as well as several other prominent members of the order outside of the state.

In a letter here, Mr. Stanley writes: "We are going to work all of the lodges in that district, spending the whole week there, and will have can-

Exclusion Law Closed Incident Hughes Tells Japan

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 19—The American reply to the Japanese protest against the exclusion provision of the immigration act was made public last night by the state department simultaneously with its publication through the foreign office in Tokio. It is cordial and friendly in tone, but at the same time makes it clear that the exclusion provision in no way trespasses upon any written or implied obligation on the part of the United States.

Secretary Hughes points out that congress was wholly within its right in the enactment of the provision and that the action taken "is mandatory upon the executive branch of the government and allows no latitude for the exercises of executive discretion as to the carrying out of the legislative will expressed in the statute."

The construction generally placed upon the American note is that it conclusively demonstrates the view of the Washington government that the exclusion law is a closed incident and that no attempt to modify or alter its terms is to be expected.

Secretary Hughes in the note which he prepared with utmost care, expresses pleasure over the "friendliness and candor" of the protest communication delivered to him by Ambassador Hanihara, May 31.

"You may be assured of the readiness of this government to consider in the same spirit the views you have set forth," Mr. Hughes adds.

The note then analyzes the exclusion provision applicable to all aliens ineligible for citizenship as it is mod-

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR VISITING FARMERS ON SATURDAY

Silk Display And Ford Truck Parade Other Features Of The Day

The big Saturday show for the farmers of Morgan and the adjoining counties is gaining impetus as the days roll by. Several camps were made at the chamber of commerce on Wednesday regarding the complimentary party on the 21st and brought forth the following statement from W. J. Meininger, secretary-manager of that organization.

"The tickets issued for free admission to the Princess theater are interchangeable at the Star theater. Anyone holding one of these tickets will be admitted to either playhouse from the hours of 1 to 6 in the afternoon on Saturday. The souvenirs have been split so that both houses may offer equal attraction for the farmers and their families on that day. The souvenirs will be given out by C. J. Randolph, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. who was kindly consented to serve. Two special cakes will be baked early Saturday morning especially for the ladies while the remainder of the souvenirs are for the young folks. We have gathered together all the souvenirs possible and there will be enough for all the kiddies."

In connection with the farmer's party the Morgan County Motor company is closing national Ford truck week with a gigantic parade of all the Ford trucks that are in use at this time in Albany-Decatur. Mr. Peterson manager of the local Ford distributing plant stated that at present the parade would possibly stretch over two miles in length. Several merchants have signified the intention of decorating and entering floats in the procession.

The people of Albany-Decatur are expecting the farmers on Saturday and all indications point that the day will be a big one. It is thought that between two and three thousand visitors will be guests of the theaters and the chamber of commerce on the appointed day. It has also been arranged that the auditorium at the chamber of commerce will be thrown open to the public for the benefit of the visitors who wish to see the wonderful display of silk manufacturers obtained from the firm of Schwarzenbach-Huber of West Hoboken, N. J. The display is valued at $15,000 and is obtained in the southland for the first time. The silken pictures have caused much comment in eastern displays and cannot be duplicated.

Gas, In Newspaper, Placed Behind Rostrum

GOVERNOR TO SIFT THE CASE

One Senator Taken To Hospital On Stretcher

(Associated Press)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 19—Chlorine gas was let loose in the senate chamber today, after that body had been in session since Tuesday at 2:05 p. m.

The fumes were so strong that it was impossible to stay in the room and the factions that have prevented adjournment, agreed to an hour's recess, in order to clear the gas from the chamber.

Three republican senators and one democrat were overcome by the gas and treated by physicians.

The gas was in a newspaper, discovered behind the rostrum draperies. Governor Flynn, who appeared in the chamber shortly after the discovery of the newspaper, declared that an attempt apparently had been made to suffocate Lieutenant Governor Toupin, who showed effects of the fumes and left the chamber.

When the fumes of the gas became noticeable, senators and spectators became groggy. Soon Senators Sherman, Sanderson and Sharp, republicans and Powers, democrat, sank into a coma and were carried out.

An hour and a half after the gas was discovered physicians announced that the four senators were out of danger.

Lieutenant Governor Toupin, pale and nauseated, mounted the rostrum and announced the senate would proceed with business. The four stricken senators were not in their places.

Governor Flynn declared he was "going to the bottom of this and find out who did this."

The Lieutenant Governor keeps up the filibuster by consistently refusing to recognize any motion made by republicans.

Senators Sherman, Sharp, Sanderson and Cole were taken to a hospital at 11:25 today. Senator Sherman was carried from the committee room on a stretcher and his face was badly drawn as he was taken down the stairs to an ambulance. The other three senators were able to go to the ambulance assisted by their colleagues.

Hendrix Off To Return Prisoner

Newt Hendrix, well known special officer, left for Linden, Texas, today under orders from Sheriff Poole to bring back from Texas, John Hutto who is now held in the county jail at Linden, and wanted here for skipping his bondsman.

Hutto was under indictment here for making whisky. A friend went his security to the amount of $1,000.

Mr. Hendrix went to Texas in response to a wire received today from officers at Linden stating that Hutto was ready to return to Alabama and had waived all extradition proceedings. Mr. Hendrix left on the 11:25 morning train via Memphis.

FURNITURE STORE ROBBED OF CASH

The Morgan Furniture company on Second Avenue was robbed last night of about $60.00 in cash.

As the safe shows no signs of violence, it is believed the lock combination was worked.

J. L. Moore, an employee of the company, is part looser by the theft. He had $30.00 in the safe, it was stated. Mr. Moore discovered many papers scattered around the safe when he came in to work this morning.

The safe door had been closed. None of the papers scattered about were of value.

So far as could be seen today no furniture had been stolen from the store.

South Must Improve

By National Boll Weevil Control Association. J. C. Ford County Agent, Co-operating

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—Nothing so forcibly exhibits the peril to the cotton industry of the United States under boll weevil conditions as the recent report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture on the increased acreage of cotton this year in other countries says a statement issued by the National Boll Weevil Control Association.

It shows that India has increased from 21,792,000 to 23,088,000 acres; Brazil from 1,866,400 to 1,965,800; Uganda from 334,000 to 419,000; Anglo-Egyptian Sudan from nearly nothing to 101,000; Argentina from 55,500 to 154,000.

Other reports from reliable sources estimate Australia's acreage this year at 130,000 contrasted with only a few thousand last year.

The world is in dire need of cotton, and if the South will not control the weevil and produce a sufficient supply, other countries with cotton lands as good as ours will make up the deficiency. These other countries have an abundant supply of cheap labor and once they establish cotton growing on a large scale their competition will be fierce.

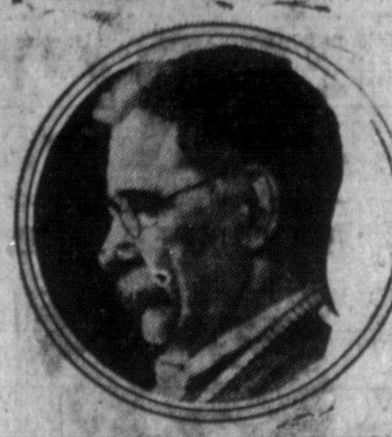

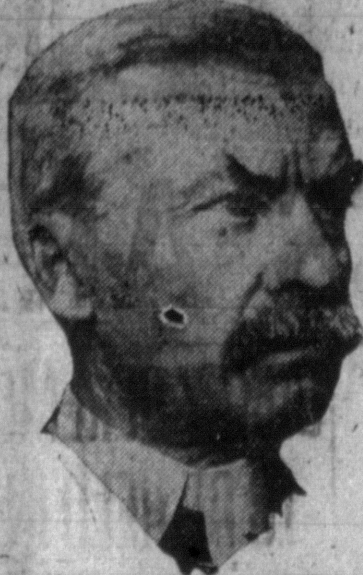

Boll Weevil control is a matter of understanding and diligence understanding of boll weevil habits, of weather influence, and diligence in supplying the methods of control worked out by the scientists of the department of agriculture and the agricultural colleges.

There are many patented machines and commercial mixtures which may or may not be effective, but ample demonstration has been made that the government methods of poisoning are the most economical in the long run and the most certain of profitable results.

According to the latest quotations made to the National Boll Weevil Control Association, calcium arsenate is considerably cheaper at this time than it was at the same time last year. Cotton is higher. The use of calcium arsenate under such conditions is no an expense but an investment.

ROAD COMMISSION MEASURE UPHELD

(Associated Press)
MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 19.—The supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the amended act of legislature providing for the present highway commission and upheld the right of the commission to select the route it believes most feasible for a state-built highway.

The contest before the supreme court was the result of the commission's selection of the Gainesville detour as the route of the highway between Livingston and Eutaw.

By routing the road through Gainesville, instead of Belgee, as recommended by federal engineers, it was charged that the distance was increased by about seven miles.

Citizens of Belgee contested the selection of the route in a suit brought in the Montgomery county circuit court and attacked the constitutionality of the act creating the present commission.

Judge Leon McCord, of the circuit court, held that the highway commission act was constitutional, that the commission had the power to select the most feasible route without special to its length and dissolved a temporary injunction granted against letting of contracts for the road.

Another injunction was granted, however, after the commission already had awarded the contract, halting work, pending an appeal to the supreme court.

The high court upheld and affirmed the decision of the circuit court.

A DAILY PRAYER—We pray Thee to fill us with a sense of the need of Thy forgiveness and of the forgiveness of our fellowmen.

The Florence News comments on a recent Sunday which brought forth no automobile accidents. Without appearing boastfully, the Twin Cities might remind "Fair Florence" that we enjoy an accidentless Sunday ever so often.

Apparently the republican leaders had an easy time running things to suit themselves at Cleveland. The truth is just coming to light. "All that glitters isn't gold."

The "Safety First" workers at the local L. & N. shops recently set a high mark for other industrial workers to shoot at. But in truth, at other places high marks as to the prevention of accidents have been made. For instance at one large plant in a northern state over three thousand men worked through ninety-five days without an accident of sufficient magnitude to cause a single man of the over 3000 to lose a single day from work.

It has been shown at the Ensley steel plants that whereas years ago fatal accidents came almost daily now only a few men are killed during many working weeks.

The local shops have made a fine record, but let the men set a mark for a 100 days without an accident and then if successful they will still be below the mark mentioned above where over 3000 men worked for 95 days without a reportable accident.

The "Howdy-Howdy" days deserve to succeed and doubtless will. Lastig values come to all people because of friendly associations such as are proposed by the Albany-Decatur Chamber of Commerce, as between the country people of the county and the people of this community.

Directly, all will benefit because of the trade relations sure to be established. The people of the country need the things the city people have and the people here need what the country people can bring. Not only in the exchange of material things will all concerned benefit, in what will be learned on all sides great benefits will accrue.

The country people will see many things which if they had them in their possession would lighten life's labors and tend to enrich life in many ways. Certain important incentives can and doubtless will be gained by those who visit the Twin City people Saturday and on other days.

After all one of the most valuable possessions to be had is a large stock of incentives. Also a large number of wants tend to development and to greater happiness, despite the teachings to the contrary. A person's happiness is not measured by the fewness of his wants, but rather his happiness and usefulness is increased by the number of his wants if they are met in legitimate ways.

For example should country people here on Saturday see houses they admire, the tendency would be for them to go home and do some new building. But when building is done, wealth is created and happiness and usefulness prompted.

The country people should not and will not think that their presence is sought for strictly business reasons. Their presence is sought in a large measure because the people here desire the companionship and the advice of the country people. In a word commercial values are not the only values by a long shot. Dollars and cents do not meet life's obligations by a long shot. It is thought the mixing and mingling of all the people that the best and highest results are attained. A royal welcome awaits the country people, and the local people hope that they will be greeted warmly by their cousins.

The action of the Morgan County Pastor's Union on Monday endorsing the use of display advertisements in newspapers to call attention to the claims of the churches and the gospel preached by their ministers, was not unexpected, the action being in direct line with similar actions by numbers of the national church councils of this country.

In the resolution as adopted by unanimous vote by the local pastors reference is made to the practical try-out of church advertising in the Albany-Decatur Daily for the past months, and the style and makeup of the half page as used from week to week was commended.

It is stated by those church workers and pastors who advocate cooperative advertising by the churches of the community that such advocacy is made because of a concern to focus the attention of the people generally upon the churches and their undertakings.

It was felt that where the church people of this section have several hundred thousands dollars invested in church property and where the yearly financial budgets of the churches run into scores of thousands, that not to advertise such a big investment would be a mistake from a business standpoint.

It is urged that if the churches really mean business, they should tell the people so in a business way. It was felt that the real or imaginary wall of separation between church people and non-church-going people should be broken down, and that one way to accomplish such a laudable purpose was to have the church people go to the trouble and expense of urging church attendance with attractively worded advertisements.

The action of the pastors is one more of the welcome evidences that the church people realize that they and their efforts should be in close with all the other interests of humanity. The action of the churches in commending the "bread of life" to all the people, as prominently and as confidently as its sellers advertise the "bread that perisheth" is a worthy effort toward bringing the churches and the messages from their pulpits closer to the people.

In a word the church people seem determined to put business methods into religious activities in the hope of getting religion into business on a larger and better scale.

Not only are our material resources of value in presenting Alabama to national attention, but, according to the Gadsden Journal: "While telling the world of our cotton and corn, of our coal and iron, of our schools and churches, and of our splendid citizenship, why not say something good about Alabama's health record? This information will open the eyes of some of those in the North and West who still cling to the idea that this is a state of swamps and malaria."

The suggestion is practical. During the last few years Alabama has made commendable progress in health work. The encouragement and aid of the federal government have borne fruitful results. While much remains to be done, the progress has been a very valuable asset to the state, and could be further capitalized through successful efforts to let outsiders know about it.

In many parts of Alabama malaria has been nearly eliminated, while typhoid, scarlet fever and other communicable diseases have been brought under control with records of improvement that demonstrate the effectiveness of the health measures pursued. In many parts of the state active anti-malaria campaigns are now under way. Not only have direct benefits been extensive, but the way has been paved for much greater improvement in the immediate future. Full-time health units in many counties are having inspirational effect, and today Alabama is one of the healthiest states in the country, as shown by its comparatively low death and sickness rate.

The more this information is carried far and wide, the better for this state. While Alabama, until recently, did not fully appreciate the value of the public health in its industrial aspect, that appreciation is fast developing with the effects and knowledge of the work that is being done. When this becomes known the country over, the appeal of this state to capital and desirable residents will be greatly strengthened, and fuller benefits of the fight against disease will have been realized.—Age-Herald.

Crowds Fail To Rescue Aviator

(Associated Press)

DAYTON, O., June 19.—Lieut. John A. MacReady veteran army flier added the most thrilling chapter to the story of his exploits in the air last night. He has flown across the continent, he has ascended to more than 24,000 feet and come down as an automaton, dead from the cold. Last night he crawled out on the wings of his plane, the motor of which had gone dead, and jumped with a parachute into 1,800 feet of absolute blackness. He landed without a scratch and is the first to make the jump at night.

His plane had fallen to earth with a crash and broken to pieces. Crowds congregated and stood in horrified anxiety. Some attempted to extricate the flier whom they felt sure was smashed in the wreckage. MacReady suddenly walked into their midst. He had landed a short distance away and heard his plane crash.

MATERIAL IS PLACED TO REPAIR HIGHWAY

Sand and other road building materials are being hauled to different points on the Danville pike, by W. P. Moore, president of the Columbia Asphalt Construction company, to whom the board of revenue of Morgan County has awarded a $25,000 road repair contract.

Mr. Moore is here in person to direct the work. He stated that in 30 days time he hoped to complete the work to be done on the Danville pike.

About July 20, Mr. Moore expects to have his headquarters at Hartselle and will repair some pike roads leading out of that place. He stated he would employ local labor bringing only his regular foremen with him from Columbia.

Much of the machinery to be used by the Moore company has already arrived. Early next week it is expected that about 20 men will be working on the Danville pike.

SOCIALISTS' BODY BELIEVED FOUND

(Associated Press)

ROME, June 19.—Nation-wide search for the body of Matteotti, socialistic deputy, alleged to have been kidnapped and murdered by political adversaries today centered around the little village of Mentana, about 100 miles northwest of Rome, as the result of an anonymous letter published by a Naples newspaper and transmitted to the crown prosecutor at Rome.

The letter stated that Matteotti's body was buried near Mentana, three kilometers from the main road leading to San Quincio.

The letter stated that the body contained 14 knife wounds and will be found wrapped in a black cloth, buried five meters deep. The newspapers are stressing the alleged confession of a man arrested by the Milan police, who said his name is Otto Chirszel and who declared that he was employed by the political opponents of Matteotti to follow and spy on the socialistic deputy.

The prisoner who declares that he is a Russian, and admits that he betrayed both the socialists and fascists says he had learned a crime was being plotted against Matteotti and that he informed his wife.

HUNTER TO DISCUSS UNIFICATION PLAN

Dr. James D. Hunter, pastor of the Central Methodist church, will address his congregation and visitors Sunday night at his church on the plan now pending to unify the Methodist Episcopal church, and the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

It was learned that Dr. Hunter is favorably inclined to the union of the two branches of the Methodist church, on the terms as now discussed by the leaders of the two denominations.

At Chattanooga, July 2, a general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church South, will meet when some definite action is expected looking to the joining the two churches as one religious body.

A number of local people are planning to attend the Chattanooga convention. It is said that Dr. Samuel A. Steel, the veteran pastor of the First Methodist church, at the present time, does not look with favor upon the unification of the Northern and Southern Methodists.

Bishops Cannon, Mazon, and Moore are known to favor the proposed union while Bishop W. A. Candler and Bishop Collins Denny are leading the fight against unification.

SEATTLE—Mutiny on the high seas, typhoons, and Chinese pirates were among the experiences which the last year allotted Fred N. Troup, first officer of the five-masted schooner Tseng Tai which, flying the flag of the Chinese republic, has been docked here loading lumber.

Troup, whose home is at Puyallup, Wash., near Seattle, signed last summer as first officer on the American schooner Levi W. Ostrander. When her name was changed to Tseng Tai and Chinese took over the vessel, Troup became master. On a voyage from Shanghai to Pochow the schooner ran into a typhoon, which sent her fleeing for safety under bare masts.

On a second voyage to Pochow, the schooner touched at the port of Quantow. While it was lying at anchor Chinese bandits appeared.

"The Danish chief mate and I were the only white men aboard," recalled Troup. "Each of us had an automatic. I fired 22 times. Some fell; I couldn't count how many. My Chinese crew of 28 were caught in their quarters and three were slain. We managed to get in a motor boat and escape." Later they regained their ship, which the pirates had deserted after removing everything portable.

Declares The West
Is Strong For Ford

Mortimer Sullivan, a retired Missouri farmer, living near Kansas City who is here on a visit to his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mullins of West Albany, stated that while the condition of farmers was bad over the country, that he did not believe the new farm-labor party would get very far this year.

Mr. Sullivan stated that incomes from farms were very uncertain in his section. He said that whereas some potato farms had brought incomes of $200 an acre, that he found 6 per cent interest, the legal rate in Missouri more satisfactory. He stated that he saw the handwriting on the wall a little ahead of some of the others and sold much of his land off at $350 per acre, but that he still retained about 400 acres that had cost him only about $175 an acre.

Strong For Ford In Missouri

Mr. Sullivan lives about five miles from the Kansas City plant of Henry Ford. He stated that stories to the effect that Ford worked his men hard, were not borne out by the facts. He stated that men he knew, "and they are not very able men," had been working in the Ford plant many years and remained in good plight and spirits. Mr. Mortimer said the farmers of the west were very strong for Ford for anything he might want, and that any who taught that the people generally throughout the west were not for Ford for Muscle Shoals were badly mistaken.

Hartselle News

Adlai West Correspondent

The town went literally baseball mad on last Tuesday, the official opening day for the local's. The first of a series of three games with the strong Athens team was staged before a large and enthusiastic crowd of fans, and it was freely said that, it was the best game ever played on the local diamond.

The large crowd of fans were kept on edge throughout the entire twelve innings, it being necessary to play that number before a decision.

The Hartselle Concert band was on the grounds and played throughout the contest, Mayor James F. Stewart officially opened the season by throwing the first ball across the plate.

In the very first inning the visitors were able to get a lead of one score, which they duplicated in the second. A muffed fly in right gave them a third.

Hartselle was able to tie the score early in the game, and from that time on it was three-up and three down for several innings. In the first half of the twelfth the visitors were able to put across the deciding score, the final result being 4-3.

It was freely said that it was the best game of baseball ever played on the local diamond, the large crowd remaining throughout the entire twelve innings.

It was a pitchers battle from beginning to end, each twirler striking out more than a dozen men.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Trick That Delivered Madge Into the Hands of the Gang.

I THANKED my particular little Joan that Madge's slowness of thought had kept the knowledge of my possession of the small revolver from the men on the truck until I had gained the precarious shelter of the body of my small car afforded.

I crouched lower behind it, leveled the small revolver directly at the foremost man and said distinctly:

"Yes, and I have you covered.
Don't make any mistake, either. I'm not afraid to use it."

I would not have recognized my own voice, so raucous it was, and with some detached part of my brain I wondered from whence I obtained the nerve to speak at all. It appeared to be the most foolhardy thing in the world thus to defy men whom I could hope to hold off but a few minutes at the longest, but there seemed to be a psycho little voice somewhere within my consciousness insistently sounding the message:

"Keep them guessing as long as you can! Don't give up!"

There was a loud laugh from one of the men at my challenge, but I noticed hopefully that it was not shared by the others, nor did it have the insouciant note which the other guffaw held. It was quickly silenced by the smallest of the men, evidently the leader, who said ven-omously:

"Shut up, you fool, or I'll give you the chance of going over and taking that rattle away from that baby."

An Unexpected Attack.

There was no answer to this proposition, and with a little thrill of triumph, I realized that, even though I was a woman, no one of them was anxious to take a chance at the revolver in my hand.
The bubble of my vanity, thus inflated, was quickly punctured, however, when the leader went on in a tone evidently not meant for me,
but which was caught by my ears,
sharpened preternaturally by danger.

"She's a blasted sight more dangerous than if she could shoot straight—you never know where a woman's going to aim, she never knows herself, and then when she gets through aiming she shoots in the opposite direction. We've got to rush her somehow."

"There'll be three of you gone before you 'rush' me," I called defiantly, and had the small satisfaction of seeing them start apart in amazement that I had overheard

Their silence was followed by a torrent of profanity and gutter in-

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I have been going with a young man four years my senior for a year and a half. But ever since a little quarrel we had, he has been going with a very dear girl friend of mine who seems like a sister to me.
He now wants me back again. I am afraid of spoiling my friendship with this girl if I go with him again.

I love them both dearly, although neither of them regarded my feelings while going together.
They both played against me.

What shall I do? Which one's feelings should I regard? Can I trust either?

BILLY: The situation isn't as sorious as you are making it, my dear. There is no reason why the young man shouldn't keep you both as his friends. Also you can keep the friendship of the girl after you renew your friendship with the young man. You have no claim upon one another since you are not engaged, you see. They did not "play against" you. They did a very natural thing.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl nineteen years old. Although I try to be as pleasant as I can, I seem to be very unpopular with men. They like to "kid" me along for a while,
but when they see the reality of that which wears off, they are very cool toward me. This hurts me very much. They never ask to take me out, and if I'm ever in a mixed crowd I'm always the wallflower.
I try my hardest to be a congenial, good sport, and I'm well liked by the girls.

Don't you think a girl has to have subtler methods to get men than just being pleasant and congenial?

I've never had a man friend, and
I'm a natural girl, so I want one.

UNPOPULAR.

UNPOPULAR: Let men "kid"

you, if you wish, but show them that you have some in-

teelligence and can do more than just amuse them for a few minutes.

Don't shrink from men or keep in your mind always the thought that you are unpopular. Just forget about that and about yourself completely. Make an effort to interest the men you meet by—and here's the secret—showing that you are interested in them, not as men, necessarily, for then you will be thought somewhat of a flirt, but as persons!

Write me again, won't you, and tell me how successful you have been.

HER PROBLEMS

WHEN EVEN WOMEN EXPERTS MAY FIND THEMSELVES PERPLEXED.

MISS ENTHUSIASTIC—The color of these adorably sheer stockings is, indeed, hard to place. They're cloudy orchid—at least that's what they're called in Paris, but in New York they're ghost orchid. You see, they really are difficult, so Fifth Avenue names these shades "phantom colors" and some, illusion, mirage, pudman, shadow and—why, it's as hard to remember them as the names of Powell cars!

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

How Insurance Came Into Being.

THE importance insurance has assumed in modern life is almost incalculable. There are few men who do not insure their lives in favor of dependents.
Insurance against accident, fire, loss of ships at sea, loss of voice, of limbs, of household goods, jewelry and money, against robbers, and in the case of automobiles, against damages done by collision as well as theft—these things are general.

But who began insurance, and which form is the oldest? Curiously enough, it is marine insurance that

Halley, of Comet Fame, Compiled the First Mortality Table.

antedates all, for it dates from early days of the Greek colony of Rhodes, five hundred years before Christ.
In Rhodes it became the custom for a number of men to advance money to be paid back with big interest if a voyage was successful, but not to be repaid if the ships were lost at sea.

Direct marine insurance for a premium began as far as is known in Belgium in 1300, and within a hundred years rates and chances of loss at sea were stabilized in various European countries.

Next came fire insurance, which started in London after the great fire of 1666. Within twenty years several companies were selling fire insurance and which proved profitable.

But the big problem was insuring lives. The uncertainty of human existence, the complete absence of anything like mortality statistics, caused this form, now the most important, by far, and the greatest benefit to man, to lag.

A man named William Gibbons was insured at the Royal Exchange in 1533 for about 400 pounds for an 8 per cent premium for the term of one year. He died within the term and the insurers had to pay.
That was enough of that, and no more was heard of life insurance for over a hundred years. Then a group of men formed what corresponded to modern fraternal insurance, which suffered various vicissitudes before being extinguished.

It was Edmund Halley, the great astronomer who named the comet after him, who first conceived the idea of founding life insurance. He sought for a long time for some means of estimating the prospective life of man, but he was handicapped because cities did not keep a record of the age of persons who died.

It happened that the city of Breslau in Silesia did keep such records and Halley secured copies of the register for five years from 1687 to 1691, including 6193 births and 5899 deaths. There was no census of the city, but he made a guess at the population and computed how many children out of a thousand taken at the age of one, will die in each succeeding year. This was the first mortality table.

Halley discovered the comet which bears his name, but as far as mankind is concerned he did far more good by his mortality table. Upon it insurance rates could be based.

In 1746, a Frenchman issued a table based upon the records of certain religious associations in Paris and these were more accurate because he had exact population to base his deductions upon.

The first real life insurance company was the Equitable of London, which started in 1765. The Carlisle table, based upon the population of an English town, succeeded the Breslau and Tontine tables, but it was still far from accurate. The errors of these tables worked in favor of the companies, allowing them to charge a higher rate than was necessary, which made them prosperous.

The so-called "American Table" was brought into use in 1868, and this has stood the test of time. It has been modified and improved by the experience gained through the vast growth of the business of life insurance during the last half century.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Many of the Newest Linens Are Exceedingly Colorful.

THE influence of our closer contact with the peasantry of other nations through their handiwork, and perhaps a little of our own American Indian influence in the field of bright colors, have had their effect in making us a colorful people this season. Whether we shall remain so is a question only to be answered by fashion. But let us be gay while we may, and while the foolish season is upon us.

Table linens of the fine but unbleached variety are being embellished with large, colored monograms. These are especially attractive in rustic designs. They are placed on the corners of the napkins where they show when the napkins are folded. On the cloth, they appear eighteen or twenty inches from the center at either side, so as to lie between the edge of the centerpiece and the corner of the napkin or serving dish. In some instances, they are of six-inch size and are done in the middle, in which case they are not covered by an extra centerpiece.

We also have a return of the old, colored, damask cloth, which, though it is still familiar to the older generation of housewives, has a few touches now such as an embroidered, scalloped edge or a knotted, fringed edge, where it used to be a hand-hemmed affair. Of course, the napkins are finished to match. Where initials are used, they are done with white linen floss rather than in color, the cloth itself being colored.

Another revival is the white damask cloth with the colored border.
The borders come in many old designs, such as the Grecian key, rustic log and laurel leaf. But there are many new ones also.

In a Summer cottage or bungalow, where tablecloths seem to be still used, these linens are very popular.
Doile sets seem to be used only at luncheon time. There is no denying the fact that the covered table is always homey and cozy.

It seems almost a sacrilege to use the candlewick spreads that our grandmothers labored so hard to make. But the machine-made ones are certainly pretty. They come in plain white or done with colors on a white ground and are lovely for the Summer home. The so-called "Dolly Madison" spreads, having a plain stripe and a crinkled stripe alternately, come in all the dainty colors with scalloped edges. The best thing about them is the fact that in laundering they do not have to be ironed or mangled.

White cotton spreads with dainty chintz borders are very English in appearance but they are pretty on the beds and do up nicely. Some of the spreads are long enough to use as a throw to cover bed, pillows and chairs. White dimity spreads are to be had at prices to suit all buyers, from under five dollars up to the French embroidered ones at a hundred and fifty dollars. These old-fashioned, new spreads have never been out of fashion and have varied but little in design with the passing years. The cheaper ones are heavier and do not require an under-spread of colored silk or cambric as do the finer ones.

Not only dainty guest-towels are embroidered, but those used daily by the family. Hemmed by hand or hemstitched, they are further decorated by cross-stitch motifs in colors or in a single color. In making these towels, one will find it more economical to buy the huck by the piece instead of in lengths. The towel may be cut in the length liked best with full allowance made for hems. Applied, colored hems are a fad of the period and are joined to the towels with hemstitching, then the work above is done in the color that matches the hem.

Bath-towels have not escaped the color craze and are quite gorgeous.
They boast applied colored hems and large, embroidered initials.
Kitchen towels bring up the rearguard. They come in line plaids, hemmed by hand then ornamented with cross-stitch motifs of forks, spoons, dishes, cups, saucers, ladles, gridirons and other appropriate motifs.

Towels for the chambermaid's cleaning basket are in large, dark plaids to distinguish them from those used in the kitchen.

YOUR HEALTH

Beware of Dampness and Conserve Your Health

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE are almost as many theories of health as there are doctors. Each of us, whether doctor or layman, has views on the causes of this or that disease.

Along comes Sir James Cantlie, of England, with some new ideas. Lecturing on "The Health of Professional Men," at the Institute of Hygiene, he presented his original views.

Sir James insists that dryness of the body is essential to health. Warmth is not enough. To escape rheumatism, he says, the body must be protected against dampness. Deafness, he believes, is caused by damp pillows.

Sir James has investigated and has to his own satisfaction proved that bed clothing absorbs moisture all day and then your clothing, hung on the chair, is absorbing moisture all night. Consequently your body is always in contact with moist materials.

When as a boy I used to make a winter visit to my grandmother in the country, it was a moment of excitement when she took down the brass warming-pan. Of course it was a signal that the time had come to go to bed, but I was reconciled because it was thrilling to see Grandmother fill the pan with glowing coals. Then, in solemn procession I led the way with the candle, while she marched up the stairs to apply the heat to the cold and clammy sheets.

If there is any question about the effect of the warming-pan on my youthful health, I can testify that my youthful comfort was materially benefitted by its use.

If you never placed your shivering form between the sheets of a bed just under the roof of a one-and-a-half-story house, when the temperature was thirty-two degrees below zero, you don't know how different is this experience from getting into the delicious warmth of a bed prepared by the warming-pan.

I taught school in the country one winter and slept in a room where the water-pitcher froze solid every night. Sir James may be a crank, but many a country boy would like to have his views adopted by every home.

It is bad for sleep and bad for health to get into a bed shivering and to continue to shiver for hours.
Cold and moisture in the sheets will add to this uncomfortable experience. There can be no doubt that the resistance of the body to the germs of disease is lowered during this experience. This may give the germs an opportunity to start their insidious work.

I fear I cannot travel the whole route with Sir James Cantlie. No matter how dry the sheets when you go to bed, the moisture of the skin is sure to be imparted to the linen of the sheets and very soon they are moist. But clothing or bedding that is damp to the touch should not be placed next to the body. It will chill the surface and lead to trouble.

I firmly believe that dry feet are essential to health. Most persons hate rubbers and won't wear them.
This is wrong. Unless you provide an extra pair of shoes at your place of business, you make a mistake if you do not wear rubbers, to escape the necessity of going about all day with moist feet.

Dryness and warmth of the body are important factors in promoting health. It is not a good thing to wet the hair every time it is combed.
To do so leads to chilling of the scalp and the development of ear-rache. Damp pillows would have the same effect.

Let us keep dry and warm for the sake of good health.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. M. O. Q.—Will it harm the hair and cause it to lose its color to use sulphur and egg as a wash for the hair?

A.—I doubt if it will harm the hair, but why not use soap and water?

M. D. Q.—How often should I take Bland's Iron Pills?

A.—As a tonic, take Bland's Iron Pills—any druggist will compound them—five grains, one after each meal; but before taking them talk with your doctor.

J. O. Q.—What is the food value of mushrooms?

A.—Mushrooms have a slight food value.

A. B. B. Q.—I am a woman thirty years of age, height five feet one inch. What is my correct weight?

A.—The average weight of a woman of your age and height is about 123 pounds.

MISS B. S. Q.—Can you advise me as to what will make my face plump? It is rather long and thin.

A.—This is a natural condition with some people, just as others have naturally round, full faces. If you are slender otherwise, a general gain in weight would probably correct this condition. For full particulars on this subject, kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A DAILY READER. Q.—I am a woman fifty-three years of age, height five feet four and one-half inches. What is my correct weight?

A.—Do you approve of the daily use of raw bran mixed with one's breakfast food? How much may be safely used?

A.—The average weight of a woman of your age and height is about 144 pounds.

A.—A tablespoonful of bran daily is very beneficial.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLEIFFE

She Chats About the Very Newest Lingerie.

AS soon as warm weather is in sight, we maidens get very busy making underwear in our spare moments.

"It is really very smart of us to sew while we are sitting about chatting," Pam remarked.

I glanced over to where she sat
on a low stool, a fluffy bit of white sewing on her lap.

"Just what are you making?" I asked.

Pam held it up.

"I saw that the sheer cloud of white took the form of a combination."

"Getting ready for warm, Summer days?" I asked.

"That's just what I'm doing,"
Pam admitted.

"You see I wear silk bloomers and shirts during the Winter, but I usually change into Summer mat-terials as soon as the warm months come around," Pam explained.

"I do think the plain combinations are cooler than shirts and panties," I agreed.

"This looks cool enough, doesn't it?" Pam asked, as she held it up for inspection.

"I admitted that the material was sheer enough to avoid being warm."

"What is it?" I asked.

"Batiste," Pam told me.

"I saw some like this in the window of a very exclusive underwear shop," she explained.

"You see, there are pleats down either side of the front and back," she said. "At the outside of each of these groups I am running some plain net edging, putting it on slightly, fully."

"Most effective. Is it difficult to do?" I asked.

"Not at all," Pam assured me.
"At least not for me, because I love doing it."

"The deep band at the top is also of net, but this time it has an embroidered design traced over its surface," she continued.

"I like the combination of narrow

Dainty Net Trims This White Batiste Combination.

net edging and the deeper banding."

I commented.

"I'm using two-toned ribbon in blue and lavender for the straps," Pam continued. "And there are tiny roses of the ribbon at either side of the front."

"I can't imagine anything more effective than blue and lavender roses!" I commented.

"Why don't you grow ambitious and start on some pretty under-things?" Pam asked.

"I don't know but that I shall,"
I replied. "What material shall I use?"

"Cross-hatched dimity is best for every day," Pam answered.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JUNE 20.

The stellar operations for this day present a very active and auspicious state of affairs in all lines of endeavor. In all mercantile and professional transactions, there should be felt the friendly rule of Mercury triple Luna as well as the benefic assistance of Jupiter by lunar and mutual aspect. There may be opportunity for sudden and advantageous change or journey, which should be unhesitatingly accepted with confidence. Money and business should increase and expand, yet there may be some danger of duplicity. Those in the employment of others should be careful in every way.

Those whose birthday it is have the prospect of a fortunate year in which there may be expansion in business and growth in wealth and opportunity. Change should be to advantage although there may be some danger of deception. Those in the employment of others should be careful in all their movements. A child born on this day will be talented, versatile, successful in its undertakings and fortunate.

Brooms Made By Blind Workers
Sell Readily in Open Market

NASHVILLE—The state of Tennessee employs seventy blind persons in the manufacture of brooms.

The state's broom factory for the blind is located on property in the vicinity of the Main State prison, at Nashville, and every employee except the truck driver engaged in this work is blind.

There are about 15 women among the workers and some have married blind men who are employed in the factory and reside in the factory settlement.

The industry has a capacity of 100 dozen brooms a day, is operated at a profit to the state under the supervision of the commissioner of institutions, and the employees are paid a living wage for their services.

The brooms are placed on the market alongside the products of other like factories and find ready sale. The industry also operates a rug weaving and a mattress cleaning department, all of which affords an opportunity for making provision for many who otherwise would become wards of the state.

If you are neglecting to take advantage of the opportunities the want ads columns are offering you, you are throwing away a key which might unlock the door which leads to additional income. Can you afford that?
